

The Music Department

Scripps College

<http://www.scrippscollege.edu/departments/music>

The Scripps College Department of Music is housed at the College's Performing Arts Center. The state-of-the-art facilities include Garrison Theater, Boone Recital Hall, smart classrooms, studios, and a music library. Our students engage with music through diverse classroom and performance offerings, including:

- Courses in music history, theory, and ethnomusicology
- Individual and group lessons in piano, voice, violin, and chamber music
- Opportunities to perform in student recitals
- Participation in Joint Music Program choirs and orchestra performances

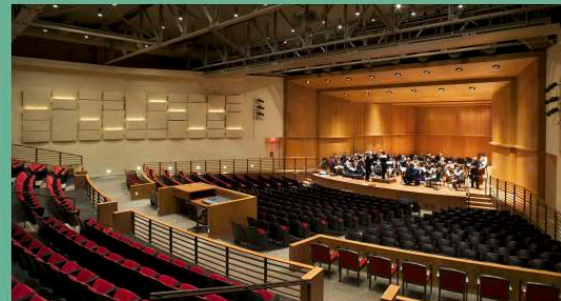

“Music lessons at Scripps have helped me develop my confidence and public speaking skills, as well as instilling in me the importance of discipline and practice, which are necessary for success in every class or activity.”

–Scripps Organismal Biology Major

Music majors have pursued exciting and enriching opportunities in sacred music, music criticism and journalism, music therapy, publishing, electronic music, museum curation, radio/television/film, higher education, and the music industry.

Our music graduates have established careers as conductors, composers, performers, scholars, and educators, as well as doctors, psychologists, lawyers, engineers, and entrepreneurs.

To learn more about our faculty, courses, and concert schedule, please visit scrippscollege.edu/departments/music or facebook.com/ScrippsMusic or call (909) 607-3266.

The Joint Music Program

of Claremont Mckenna, Harvey Mudd, Pitzer, and Scripps Colleges

www.jointmusicprogram.org

The Joint Music Program offers music study and performance opportunities to music majors and other interested students. The program sponsors one orchestra and two choirs: the Claremont Concert Orchestra, the Claremont Concert Choir, and the Claremont Treble Singers. Hosted at the Performing Arts Center of Scripps College, these ensembles regularly rehearse and perform at exceptional venues across the Claremont Colleges.

Private lessons and professional coaching sessions are available to Joint Music ensemble members at no cost.

“The choir has given me the opportunity to do what I love among people who are as passionate and dedicated to music as I am.”

- Scripps Psychology Major

Joint Music Program faculty offer a variety of music history and music theory classes. The program is closely affiliated with Scripps College's Department of Music, which offers exciting courses, chamber music classes, and lessons in voice, piano, and violin. To learn more, visit scrippscollege.edu/departments/music.

Program faculty also belong to the Humanities, Social Sciences, and the Arts Department of Harvey Mudd College. To learn more, visit hmc.edu.

To find out more about Joint Music Program faculty and classes and to view the concert schedule, please visit jointmusicprogram.org or facebook.com/jointmusicprogram or call (909) 607-3267.

In light of the Covid-19 pandemic, the Music Department faculty have been studying the latest scientific research about the safest possible ways to teach music in Fall 2020.

More information will be available in July, once the Claremont Colleges announce how the Fall 2020 semester will unfold.

Feel free to contact our faculty for specific questions about your areas of interest:

General Inquiries, Music Theory and History	YouYoung Kang, chair	ykang@scrippscollege.edu
Piano	Hao Huang	hahuang@scrippscollege.edu
Voice	Anne Harley	aharley@scrippscollege.edu
Violin	Rachel Huang	rhuang@scrippscollege.edu
Ethnomusicology and Music History	Cándida Jáquez	cjaquez@scrippscollege.edu
Choirs	Charles W. Kamm	ckamm@scrippscollege.edu
Orchestra	David Cubek	dcubek@scrippscollege.edu